ABOUT US

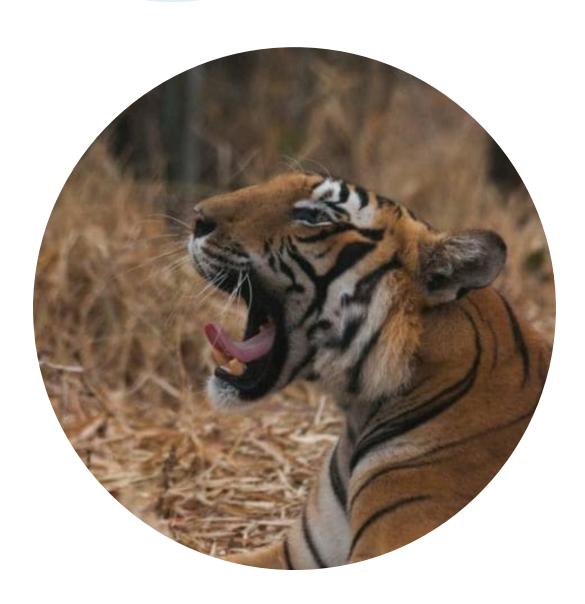

Jhalana Leopard Conservation is dedicated to protecting the iconic leopards of Rajasthan's Jhalana Forest, fostering coexistence between wildlife and local communities. Located near Jaipur, Jhalana is one of India's few urban leopard habitats, offering a rare glimpse into the lives of these elusive big cats. Through research, education, and sustainable tourism, we work to safeguard leopard populations, mitigate human-wildlife conflict, and preserve the region's fragile ecosystem. Our initiatives include camera trapping, habitat restoration, and community outreach programs that promote conservation awareness.
